is run on the silence system, and no word was spoken save to orders of the guard in charge.

BRAIN OR BRAUN?

Army Medical Corps Man Compares Records of To-Day and Yesterday.

Washington, September 29.—An undraped scarecrow gets into the army because of the custom of admitting men several pounds under normal weight, according to Captain James B. Jones, of the Army Medical Corps. After examining recruits, Captain Jones has reached the conclusion that the recruits of to-day are inferior in strength and physique to those enlisting in the year 1875.

All of the 500 will who presented themselves for enlistment, only 33 per cent could be rated as "strong," while it was 57 per cent in 1875, when hardly taken last night, and alleged to have been recruited from foreign-born, where as, the present day enlistments comprise only 3 per cent foreign-born.

Modern recruits are alleged to have more brains than those of earlier years, and it is a question whether they are not better all-round soldiers. Further investigation along these lines may be made by army officials.

HARBOR GIVEN NAME OF LEWIS HARCOURT

It Is Destined to Become Chief Seaport of West Coast of Africa.

BY LA MARQUESE DE FONTENAY.

LEWIS HARCOURT, Secretary of State for the Colonies, and married to Miss Mary Eames, of New York, niece of the late J. Pierpont Morgan, has just given his name to a harbor which is destined to become the principal seaport of the west coast of Africa. The west coast of Africa is now lamentably deficient in this respect, and the lack of any harbor has contributed to retard the development of the west coast of the Dark Continent, and also of the hinterland.

One could have thought that the whole coast line had been explored. But, to the amazement of everybody, the English Government, while cruising along the west coast, near where the River Bonny runs into the sea, discovered a small bay, and named it after a motor launch, which was on this creek and around a bend, preceded by a motor launch, taking soundings, the exploring party suddenly came upon a series of rocky cliffs extending for several miles, averaging fifty feet high, and showing a level top, right alongside of no less than seventy cliffs, the exploring party was managed with some difficulty to reach the cliffs, and after cutting through almost impenetrable vegetation, twelve feet in height, and covered with vines, who, while friendly, had never been visited there by white men.

The creek not only discharges one of the numerous outlets of the River Bonny to the sea, but at the same time the deepest of the rocks, as surveyed and cleared, and is at present being converted into the terminus of the Niger river, and a small harbor having sprung up, with wharves, iron road shops, warehouses, etc.; every thing is being done to develop the place into a great seaport, with a well-protected harbor, where vessels of the heaviest tonnage can come right alongside of the wharves, instead of being obliged to load and unload their freight several miles out at sea, after a long and difficult voyage, and the heavy surf of the Atlantic Ocean. The harbor is a wonderfully sheltered one, with a completely level beach, and a small island, which is called "Lion Island," is situated in the harbor, and is a most beautiful sight.

The new railroad from Port Harcourt will be 600 miles in length, and will connect the harbor with the interior of the continent, and will be a great boon to the people of the region.
